

FEEDING[®]
THE GULF COAST

2019 ANNUAL REPORT

INGREDIENTS TO EQUIP CHANGE

WHAT ARE THE ingredients TO END HUNGER FOR GOOD?

Call to mind your favorite meal, then think about the tools and ingredients required to create that dish. A healthy plate of food has the potential to nourish, but ingredients have the potential to inspire.

Our vision of a Hunger-Free Central Gulf Coast requires that we take a strategic look at hunger and examine how hunger robs our clients of the ability to reach their potential. We understand that a meal today will help ease the sting of a growling belly temporarily, but we strive to eradicate hunger in its entirety.

In 2019, Feeding the Gulf Coast piloted programs that led a charge for a more targeted approach in equipping individuals to end the cycle of hunger. Working through school partners, and hand in hand with agencies, the food bank explored ways to create support and resources for clients. By identifying where hunger exists and what can be done to remove barriers to a consistent food supply for those in need, whether through nutritious food, financial resources, or education, Feeding the Gulf Coast envisions distributing the ingredients that inspire our clients to live a more robust, healthier life.

Hunger looks different for each individual. We know that no one recipe can be used to fit all of our communities. By holistically addressing hunger, our organization can make strides in improving the lives of the more than 350,000 individuals in our service area who are in need. Thank you for joining in our fight and helping us lessen the impact of hunger for those we served in 2019.

During The Unknown

From Crisis to Stability

In early 2019, while the food bank continued to serve those impacted by Hurricane Michael, Feeding the Gulf Coast responded to another form of crisis.

The most prolonged U.S. Government Shutdown in recent history led to individuals and families in our community experiencing hunger for the first time due to missed paychecks.

After five long weeks of uncertainty, many furloughed workers resumed their jobs. The reality of how thin the margins are between stability and financial ruin remains etched in their minds.

Many clients we serve would be unable to feed their children if they faced an unexpected crisis, such as a $400 car repair or medical bill. The people we serve make these tough choices and more on a daily basis. The impact of hunger can be long-lasting as sacrificial decisions lead to educational development delays and chronic medical consequences.

During the five-week U.S. Government Shutdown, the food bank was able to serve numerous affected government agencies by conducting targeted distributions which helped provide food to more than 850 families.

“ WHEN THE GOVERNMENT SHUT DOWN, WE HAD A LOT OF INDIVIDUALS THAT NEEDED HELP. WE WERE STARTING NOT TO GET OUR PAY AND STARTING TO WORRY ABOUT WHERE WE WERE GOING TO GET OUR GROCERIES FROM. DO I BUY BABY FOOD AND DIAPERS OR BUY GAS TO GET TO AND FROM WORK? WHEN YOU’RE NOT GETTING A PAYCHECK, EVEN WHAT LITTLE BIT YOU HAVE, YOU HAVE TO MAKE THAT DECISION.”

Ongoing Support

Rebuilding, Meal By Meal

Displaced by Hurricane Michael, Ashley and her family of six spent several months residing in various hotels, trying to stay as close as possible to her husband's job.

"I'm a mom, and not being able to provide for your kids is very terrible," said Ashley. "It's been a horrific experience. It's been a blessing to have any help."

In 2019, the food bank continued working to rebuild and establish hope in the communities affected by Hurricane Michael. The food bank participated in various efforts in impacted counties building sustainable partnerships to move the progress forward.

Recognizing the need for basic supplies like food, Bay District Schools reached out to Feeding the Gulf Coast for a new partnership to benefit children impacted in the county. Pop-up pantries and four school-based food pantries for students and staff were set up to put food into the hands of needy families.

"IT'S A PLEASURE TO WORK WITH AN ORGANIZATION THAT CARES SO MUCH, DELIVERS ON ITS PROMISES AND SUPPORTS THE NEEDS OF OUR LOCAL COMMUNITY."

Data-Driven Decisions

Hidden Hunger

Hunger is prevalent throughout the communities we serve, and yet it is often hidden from view. To better address hunger, we must know where it resides.

In 2019, the food bank embarked on Phase 1 of our Services Insights Initiative, which will use data to provide strategic guidance on where and how to serve our clients efficiently.

The Service Insights Initiative is a Feeding America led approach to collecting shared data from the people we serve in an effort to measure effectiveness.

Over time, we can leverage Service Insights data to analyze clients' experiences and understand how they move in and out of the charitable food system.

IT IS OUR RESPONSIBILITY TO HAVE AN IN-DEPTH UNDERSTANDING OF THE IMPACT OF HUNGER ACROSS THE STATES WE SERVE. THROUGH OUR SERVICE INSIGHTS INITIATIVE, WE CAN BETTER IDENTIFY AREAS IMPACTED BY HUNGER AND MAKE STRATEGIC IMPROVEMENTS TO TARGET SERVICE TO THOSE IN NEED.

Equipping Change

FARM TO SCHOOL EDUCATION

Farm to School is a community-based strategy that supports the development of healthy eating habits for children while improving family food security.

Working through partnerships, the food bank provides hands-on learning about fresh food, agriculture, and nutrition to students.

Children have the opportunity to taste new vegetables and fruits and take produce home to their families. This valuable program is fundamental to building healthier habits for these children.

SENIOR MEAL BOXES

Senior hunger is a prevalent issue throughout our rural counties. With limited funds for necessities, seniors often must sacrifice healthy food.

The food bank operates the Commodity Supplemental Food Program (CSFP), which provides a monthly food box for qualifying individuals, age 60 years or older.

With this program, Feeding the Gulf Coast can provide seniors 30-40 pounds of nutritious supplemental food every month—bridging the gap in meals many seniors experience each month.

BENEFIT RESOURCES

Food insecure families often cannot get all the support they need from a food pantry and need additional resources to help make ends meet.

The food bank connects seniors, working families, and individuals rebuilding their lives with applicable benefits like the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) and others.

Benefits such as SNAP are essential to helping families move out of food insecurity by providing them with budget-relieving support for food purchases.

Building Pathways

Feeding the Gulf Coast was chosen by Feeding America to pilot the Household Empowerment Program (HEP).

The program focuses on building food security pathways through financial security by connecting clients with more than just food.

*Anita and her family relocated to the Gulf Coast for a job that quickly fell through. Her family faced an immediate crisis of starting over with few resources and three small children. To survive, Anita's family began to use a credit card to pay for necessities. Only able to make the minimum payments, interest began to compound their debt.

"After bills were paid, there just simply wasn't any money left to get food. I then found out about a local food pantry and decided to go," said Anita. "When I went that morning to just get some food, I was given something so much better—I was given hope."

97% of clients like *Anita enrolled in the program were carrying debt, on average over $30,000. 78% of these clients reduced their debt throughout the program.

More Than Just Food

Hunger is a complex and systemic issue. We aim to equip our agencies to provide the best support for client empowerment. By addressing the root causes of hunger and providing the client the resources and tools to overcome personal crisis and instability, we can drive our efforts to shorten the line and make real change when it comes to hunger.

Our agencies are a critical lifeline that many people rely on to make ends meet during tough seasons of their lives. We strive towards the day when they are no longer needed.

Through the Household Empowerment Program, 86.1% of the clients engaged with a financial coach. *Anita recalls how her life has changed since participating in the program. "They connected us to several resources for needs we had, such as medical clinics and home school resources. I was connected to a financial advisor who has an abundance of knowledge on all things finance. He set up a working budget with us. And worked us from a deficit every month to a surplus now."

When a client encounters hunger and the need for food assistance for the first time, it can be a scary time in their lives, but we work to provide the hope they need to move from crisis to stability.

"I feel empowered to go forward from here. It was an unexpected hiccup in life, and we were blessed to be part of the program," says Anita. "We are excited for our future and getting back to a place where we can be a blessing to others again."

Of the over 24 million meals we distributed in 2019, 15,758,420 meals were provided to families and individuals in need by our partner agencies.

*Name changed to protect anonymity.

Schools Partner to Help End Student Hunger

Everyone needs consistent access to food to be healthy and happy. For children, the lack of regular, nutritious meals can be particularly stressful and detrimental to their overall development.

The food bank utilizes a multi-tier approach for addressing childhood food-insecurity.

Last year, the food bank piloted the School Pantry Program to provide easier access for students and to allow for choice, dignity, privacy and comfort in selecting food and other items which the student and their family need.

Students are identified by teachers, counselors, and school nurses based on their level of need, and as they demonstrate signs of hunger in the classroom.

The school pantry is near the school's guidance counselors' offices, and students have access to nutritious, nonperishable, and easily consumed food and other necessities.

Students can visit the school pantry weekly, on a day and time of their choice based on their need.

Students are able to take home four entrees, two breakfasts, and two snacks. Students living in a household of five or more family members are able to double or triple this pick up number, depending on household size.

In 2019, we piloted the School Pantry Program at 3 schools, providing food assistance for nearly 50 children and their families.

Child Focused Programs

AFTERSCHOOL MEALS

Regular access to nutritious meals ensures kids can grow up healthier, smarter and stronger. The Afterschool Meals Program helps children by providing balanced meals and snacks.

The food bank partners with parks and recreation sites, schools and local community resource centers to bring meals to children along with enrichment activities, such as Farm to School and nutrition education.

Over 12,150 children were provided with over 745,000 snacks and meals during the school year.

CHILDREN

BACKPACK PROGRAM

Last year, we partnered with 170 schools to reach over 5,400 children and distribute over 82,300 backpacks. However, this number still does not meet the need of our community where one in four children experiences hunger.

The Backpack Program reduces child hunger by providing food to children on the weekends and school holidays. We work with teachers and school counselors to identify students who are struggling with hunger.

SUMMER MEALS

The summer can be a hard time for children who rely on breakfast and lunch from their schools during the school year. Research shows that family grocery costs rise during the summer when school is out and school meals disappear, putting a strain on already tight budgets.

Feeding the Gulf Coast works hard to find effective, efficient ways to connect kids to healthy meals through our Summer Meals Program. Nearly 13,500 children were provided with over 432,400 snacks and meals last summer.

Advocating for Change

Feeding the Gulf Coast has worked to develop relationships with our elected officials at the federal, state, and local levels to keep them informed and engaged around important policy issues that impact our Central Gulf Coast communities and the access our most vulnerable populations have to nutritious food.

It is important for us that our elected officials at all levels understand what hunger looks like in their communities, so they can take this into consideration when crafting legislation, enacting policies, and appropriating funds.

This opportunity has deepened our partnership with states, counties, and municipalities to provide hunger-relief programs at places like community centers, parks and libraries, increasing access to nutritious food for thousands of people in our area.

We have also had the opportunity to speak to the critical role that federal nutrition programs play in both our hunger-relief efforts and inventory.

Programs like the Emergency Food Assistance Program, the Commodity Supplemental Food Program, the Summer Food Service Program, and others provide relief to low-income families, children, seniors, and individuals who otherwise would miss countless meals.

Feeding the Gulf Coast completed 552 advocacy actions to engage our elected officials and advocate for strengthening anti-hunger policies.

Filling Plates

Helping the people we serve gain access to healthy foods is critical. Ensuring food waste is minimized in the process is an essential part of our mission as well. Connecting with local farmers results in less produce left in the field, and more nourishing food on the plates of those in need. By working with over 190 store donors, we were able to source over 13 million pounds of food through local grocers, 80% of which was fresh product.

Volunteerism

A New Outlook

Jess Kurti volunteered with Feeding the Gulf Coast as part of her challenge to volunteer at all 200 Feeding America member food banks across the country. Her five-year journey taught her a lot about hunger along the way.

“I realized I had no idea how many hungry people there were all around us,” said Jess. “Hunger in our communities is the ultimate litmus test of how well we are taking care of our most vulnerable—children, the elderly, veterans, and the working poor.”

Day in and day out, hundreds of struggling families receive groceries, thanks to dedicated volunteers like Jess, who strive to make a difference. Small contributions by each of us can make a tremendous impact in ending hunger. Feeding the Gulf Coast and our partners rely on the generosity of volunteers.

Almost 20,000 individuals and groups helped provide an estimated $2,102,790 of paid staff and operation time by donating over 210,000 hours of their time.

Our Vision

A HUNGER-FREE
CENTRAL GULF COAST

Our Mission

Feeding the Gulf Coast works through member organizations and special programs to provide nutritious food to meet the challenge of feeding people who are hungry as a result of systemic poverty, personal crisis or disaster.

We also educate the public regarding domestic hunger, proper nutrition and other related issues.
